"Track Coach of the Years"

This is your life

Auburn's Wilbur Hall Hutsell

By BILL BECKWITH, '51

Alumnews Sports Editor

YES, COACH HUTSELL—This is your life.

It is a true success story of what determination and integrity can accomplish. In a way, it is a love story, underscoring your deep devotion for Auburn. Most of all, it is a story of a man, a good man and a great coach—probably the greatest in the world today.

You—Wilbur Hall Hutsell—were a pioneer in the development of Southern track. You have achieved amazing results with small squads. Your athletes have set national as well as Southeastern Conference records.

But your greatest success is recorded in the lives of the young men who have learned sportsmanship from your example.

You have brought to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute honor, prestige and national recognition. In return, you have asked only for more young athletes to train for Auburn.

Highest track tribute

NOW THE WORLD of sports has focused its eyes on you.

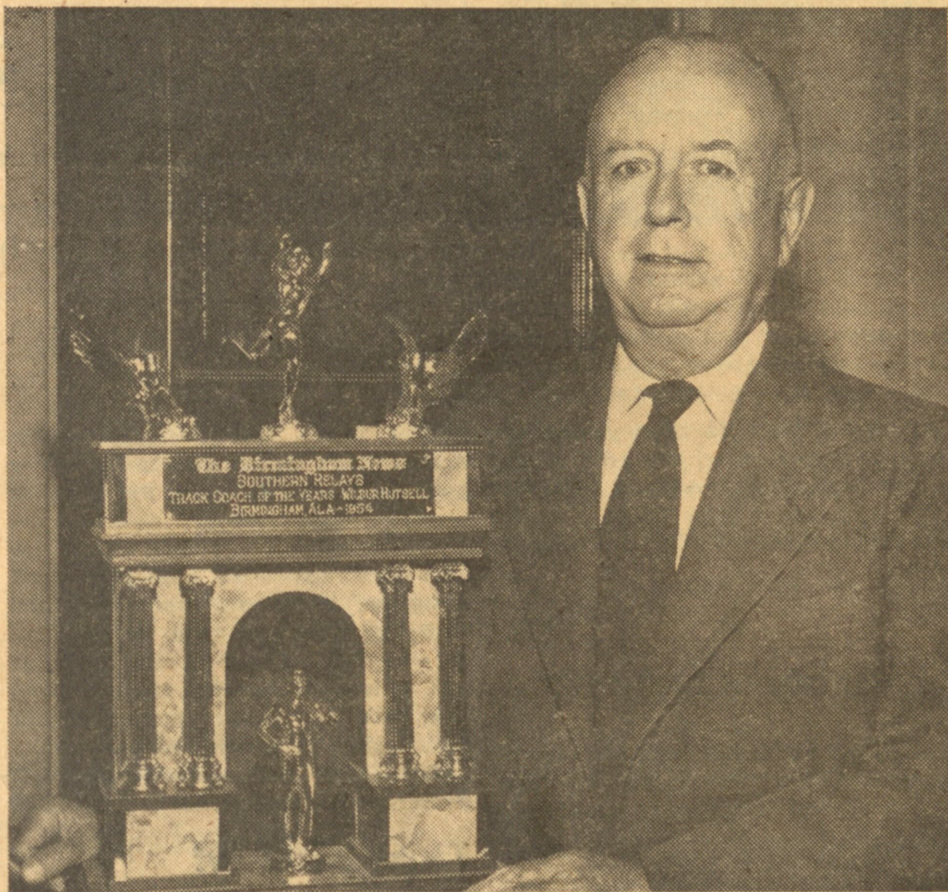

The "Coach of the Years" Trophy—highest tribute to any track coach in the nation—was presented to you on April 2, 1954, by the Coaches of America and the Birmingham News.

You were recognized for your service to track. You headed the National Collegiate Track Coaches Association in 1941-42, and worked as associate coach with Olympic teams in 1924, 1928 and 1932. In addition, there have been hours spent as chairman of the Southeastern Conference's track committee in the past 20 years, chairman of the National Rules Committee and editing the NCAA Track Guide from 1947-51.

Known as "Mr. Auburn"

YOUR LIFE is so closely knitted to the college that you regard all Auburn men as your adopted children. Now you—in turn—are recognized by alumni everywhere as "Mr. Auburn" himself.

It wasn't always so. There had to be a beginning . . . some distant, pre-Auburn days.

Athletics were born at Auburn the same year you were born in Moberly, Mo., 1892. You were the only child of Jerry and Susan Hutsell. As a farm youngster, you could run with the best of the neighbors' trotters.

It was at the University of Missouri that you became formally acquainted with track. They remember you there as a champion quarter-miler. After graduation in 1914, you continued in track at your alma mater and at an athletic club in St. Louis. The First World War beckoned; you served in the Army as a physical educationist.

1919 eventful year

YOUR ENTIRE future changed on Nov. 12, 1919. That day you married Corinne Southard, your beloved "Annie." She was beautiful then, as she is now. There has never been more devotion than yours.

The same eventful year—1919—brought you to the state of Alabama as director of the Birmingham Athletic Club. Bill Streit, '07, was responsible. This same friend recommended you to Auburn as its first full-time coach and trainer.

What did you dream of that Sept. 1, 1921, when you and Annie drove down from Birmingham to make your home in the Loveliest Village of the Plains? Was it of the future track stars you would coach? You have had many.

Champs and more champs

BEFORE THIS year's SEC meet you had produced 45 SEC champions, plus five others who tied for firsts, in the 21 meets your teams entered. There have been 12 Southeastern AAU championships, three national high hurdles champions, one NCAA and NAAU discus champion, and four Olympic performers.

Your 100th dual meet was completed against Georgia Tech this season; your teams have tasted defeat only 19 times.

Among the greats who have competed on your Auburn track teams are Weems O. (Weemie) Baskin, '27, NCAA high hurdle champion and world's indoor record holder in 1927; Euil (Snitz) Snider, '28, NAAU 400-meter record holder and 1928 Olympic contestant; Percy M. Beard, '29, a high hurdler who won seven national championships, set the world's record of 14.2 feet for the 120 high hurdles, and competed in the 1932 Olympics;

Charles (Chuck) Morgan, '40, captain of the 1940 team and national AAU high hurdles champion in 1945; William Oliver (Whitey) Overton, '50, for four years conference champion in the two-mile run and three years holder of the one-mile record who was a member of the 1948 Olympic team; James L. (Jim) Dillion, '54, NCAA and NAAU discus champion and member of the 1952 Olympic squad.

You are rightly called the "Dean of Southern Track and Field."

Liked Percy's running

YOU ARE GREAT because you believe in and love people.

Your office has served as a central employment agency for every lad with a dream. Table-waiting jobs have taken the place of scholarships for hundreds of boys who came to you with the desire to attend Auburn.

Somehow you knew that you could mold the spindle-legged boy who walked into your office into an athlete—often a champion athlete.

Take the time you saw Percy Beard as a freshman baseball pitcher, a boy from Greensboro who had never seen cinders. Just because you like his easy running motion around the bases, you asked him to come out for track. You made a world high hurdle record-holder of him. Percy is now head track coach at Florida. He has done a

Lay-away plan offered as

Ticket Sales Open

THE AUBURN Athletic Association, Inc., is completing the mailing of the 1954 football ticket order blanks and information to the college's 25,000 alumni.

All orders and payments for football tickets should be sent directly to Ticket Department, Auburn Athletic Association, Inc., API, Auburn, Ala.

Athletic Director Jeff Beard, '32, pointed out that two features of this year's sales plan will offer budgetary relief to alumni who buy tickets. Prices of tickets to Auburn football games have been reduced from 1953. In the second place, Auburn has worked out a new lay-away plan for ticket purchases.

Again Auburn's first

THIS lay-away plan originated with Mr. Beard, and details have been worked out by the ticket department. Auburn will be the first college in the country to offer football tickets for sale on an installment plan.

The lay-away plan may be applied to the purchase of football ticket orders exceeding $20. The alumnus makes a down payment when he sends in his original ticket order. Additional payments, on a schedule set by the alumnus, are to be made June 15, July 15 and Aug. 15, with full payment to be completed on or before Aug. 15.

Orders will remain in force, even if a payment is changed or missed—provided the full payment is completed by Aug. 15.

Priorities followed

AS IN THE PAST, orders will be filled in priority groups according to date initial order and payment are received. Priority orders must be received in the ticket office by July 15. After that date, sales will be open to the general public.

Ticket priorities have been established in the following order for home games: Faculty, "A" men, Auburn Educational Foundation members, dues-paying alumni, and alumni.

"A" Club members have priority to purchase two tickets if married or one ticket if single in the "A" Men's section.

Members of the Auburn Educational Foundation and Tiger Club are entitled to the following priorities:

Associate membership ($10-$25 contribution), two ticket priority per game.

Regular membership ($25-$50 contribution), two ticket priority per game; ($50-$100 contribution), six ticket priority per game.

Jeff Beard, '32

Sustaining membership ($100 or more contribution), eight ticket priority per game.

IF ADDITIONAL tickets exceeding priority are desired, they will be located in other sections of the stadium. Ticket purchasers wishing to sit together should mail orders in the same envelope.

All orders must be accompanied by check or money order, and sent to the Ticket Department, Auburn Athletic Association, Inc. C.O.D. orders will not be accepted. Tickets will be mailed about Sept. 1.

Mr. X's shoes are still empty

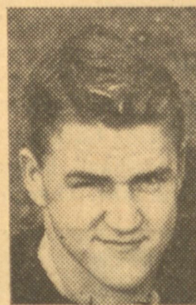

SPRING FOOTBALL practice failed to produce an X quarterback, so Coach Ralph Jordan and staff are still pondering. Bobby Freeman is set as Mr. Y. Mr. X will be selected from Bill Burbank, Howell Tubbs, Jim Pearson, or Joe Mathis. Don't be too surprised if either halfback Johnny Adams or Pat Meagher turn into signal-callers.

Most talked about athlete during the past three months has been little Byrd Whigham, basketball guard and star outfielder from Louisville. Before January he was unheard of; now he's won two letters. Whigham's father, "Steel Arm," was a distance runner and pitcher here during the middle 1920's . . . John Liptak, 1948 end, is the regular left fielder for Augusta of the Sally League.

Ticket prices cut

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR Jeff Beard announces ticket prices are being reduced for football games . . . Speaking of the Beards, Jeff, Jr., has entered Auburn . . . Another Beard is in the spotlight. He's Pat Beard, son of former hurdler, Percy, '29 the present Florida business manager and track mentor. Pat set a Florida Relays record in the high hurdles and walked away with coaches' and participants' honors in fishing with a nine-pounder . . . End Coach Gene Lorendo is a third-time papa. This time it's a girl, Leah Campbell.

Jimmy Long has been elected 1954 football captain and Jack Locklear the alternate. Jimmy is the first grid captain whose father also captained the team. Father Howell "Shorty" Long was 1929 leader . . . New basketball captains have also been elected. Bill Kirkpatrick is the captain and Jim O'Donnell his alternate . . . John Adcock, 1949 tackle, has been named head coach at Fairfield High School after serving as an assistant at Woodlawn in Birmingham for several years. His assistant is former Tider Red Lutz.

Long

Shug is fly fishing

COACH Ralph Jordan's latest hobby is fly fishing, thanks to the Alex City Auburn Club which presented him with a complete outfit. Presentation was made by Joe Bob Mitchell, star halfback of the middle 1930's . . . Wedding bells will ring soon for guard George Atkins, second string All-SEC last fall. He's engaged to Leah Marie Rawls of Birmingham, who incidentally is the World's Champion Woman water skier . . . Sonny Alsop of Mobile set a new mark for an Auburn freshman by pole-vaulting 13 feet against Florida . . . Another Mobilian is in the news. He's Ed Baker, 1953 center, who was recently named head coach at Bay Minette High School.

Vince Dooley, 1953 football captain, has been selected to play in the College All-Star game in Chicago this coming August. He will not be able to participate, however, unless he gets a leave-of-absence from the Marines. His orders call for immediate induction upon graduation . . . There's a headliner here even smaller than 5-8, 139-pound Jackie Creel. He's pitching a ace

Dooley

Herbie Pearce, Birmingham freshman. But can you call 5-7 and 137-pounds small? . . . Bill Fickling, basketball ace and high hurdler, was the envy of the Kappa Alpha's during their formal. His date was Miss America of 1952, Neva Jane Langley.

All in the family

KINSHIP MEANS something at Auburn. Check this: Pitcher Paul Susce's father, George, is catching coach for the Boston Red Sox . . . First baseman Bob Nagel is nephew of Bill Nagel, former Little Rock diamond star . . . Third baseman

Jim Pyburn's brother, Ralph, was 1949 football captain. They are strictly look-alikes . . . Catcher Reuben Finney's pop, Hal, was a former major leaguer, as were all the Finneys . . . Pat Meagher looks like father Jack, former Auburn coach . . . Fullback Olin Cunningham has a younger brother playing tackle for Alabama . . . Then there's the second-generation return of Long and Whigham.

Johnny Barton, mile and two-mile ace from Birmingham, might surpass the feats of Whitey Overton, '50, before he graduates. Now a junior, Johnny has great potentialities. . . Jeff Beard's lay-away plan for football tickets is the best yet . . . Did you know that Dr. Ralph B. Draughon, '22, one coached? . . . Bill McArdle, class of 1951, is now a sports writer for the Birmingham News . . . Billy Hitchcock, '38, new skipper for Buffalo of the International League, had his team in first place during the opening round . . . Guard Ed Duncan has signed a pro football contract with the New York Giants, but might have to wait until after tour of duty to report.

Baseball Team Wins 17, Loses 5

By BILL BECKWITH, '51
Alumnews Sports Editor

TRUE, THERE have been six Auburn baseball teams with better SEC results than our 8-5 of this season—1937, 1939, 1943, 1946, 1947, 1948. But few have equalled the overall record of 17 wins and five defeats.

No team in the SEC can boast of a better overall record this season. There is little doubt at any of the other 11 colleges that Auburn has a better club than the score book shows. Despite the late season slump, when the team lost four of the final six games, the unit was the strongest in almost every department in the conference.

Statistically, there were five losses—all against the SEC record. The law of averages accounts for over half this total. A pulled muscle in the strong right arm of Paul Susce is responsible for two others.

Pyburn, Susce shine

EVERYONE in the Auburn stands could figure how the Plainsmen could win every game. Auburn supporters had many reasons for believing that their team could have been the 1954 SEC Eastern Division champions.

Take the sensational play of Third Baseman Jim Pyburn. He dominated the entire league with a great year. His .432 batting average is tops. No one bettered his 38 hits, 22 runs, 29 RBI's, seven triples and four home runs.

Susce, despite a late season injury, won seven games against a lone defeat to Florida. He was beaten, 2-1, on two unearned runs. He posted the conference's best pitching and strikeout record. All in all, he struck out 57 batters in 64 innings.

Pyburn and Susce were both picked for the Atlanta Journal's All-SEC baseball team.

Only two seniors

COACH DICK MCGOWEN did quite a job himself with a squad which included only two seniors. For pitchers, he had two juniors, Tom McClendon and Jack Ramsey; one sophomore, Susce; and two freshmen, Herbie Pearce and Wynton Overstreet.

He started two seniors, Joe Davis and Bob Nagel; two juniors, Doug Dickey and Pyburn; and four sophomores, Jimmy Powell, Guy Young, Byrd Whigham and Howell Tubbs.

Georgia, almost a sure-in Eastern titlist at this writing, lost to Auburn in all three of the games. The sad point for Auburn was that only one counted in conference standings. The other two just helped the season's slate. They were not tallied either for Auburn or against Georgia.

Another SEC win, Tennessee, did not show up in the SEC standings. All three games were considered practice tilts in the eyes of the conference.

Win 11 straight

MCGOWEN AND HIS youngsters started the season with an outstanding 11-game winning streak. This string included single wins over FSU, Tennessee, Howard, Georgia and Georgia Tech, and double victories over Camp Rucker, Mercer and Alabama.

Georgia Tech stopped the streak in the second game at Atlanta. Four more consecutive wins followed. Then there were two Georgia games in Athens that did not count, and two games with Florida in Gainesville.

Florida stopped Auburn and Susce at Auburn, though. This was the game in which Susce pulled the muscle and lost on two unearned runs. A second-day victory over Florida was posted by Pearce.

Alabama swept both games in Tuscaloosa. The first loss was charged to Ramsey, who pitched a four-hitter, but had poor backing as his mates committed five errors. Pearce lost his first game of the season Tuesday in a real heart-breaker, after beating Florida in Auburn on the Saturday before.

Tech gave Auburn its third consecutive loss, beating McClendon for the second time, 9-6, in see-saw battle.

Nagel's homer a record

AUBURN BLASTED out 21 hits in the season finale against Tech to win 21-9 behind Freshman Pearce. The pitcher posted his fifth win against one loss. In this game, Pyburn hit a grand-slam homer while the smooth-working Dickey contributed four hits.

This game also produced the longest home run in Plainsman Park history. Nagel, playing his last collegiate game, hit a high, fast one over the center field fence. It hit in the pine trees approximately 440 feet away.

Susce Conquers Polio, Opponents

BECAUSE YOUR SON was paralyzed by polio at the age of two—would you discourage his athletic ambitions?

No. Neither did Mr. and Mrs. George Susce. They gave him a loving childhood. Little Paul did not know he was really different until his young chums laughed at his limp and refused to let him play with them.

The story of the Southeastern Conference's best pitcher today started on Oct. 29, 1934, in Pittsburgh, Pa. There was shouting from major league catcher George Susce when his second son, Paul Francis, was born.

Paul was two when polio struck. The youngster was confined to his bed for three years with little hope of recovery. Father, mother and son fought and prayed together; the prayers were answered.

Father George, a professional athlete, compensated for the lack of attention from the other boys by spending as much time as possible with his sons. He treated Paul exactly as his other three boys—one older and two younger than Paul.

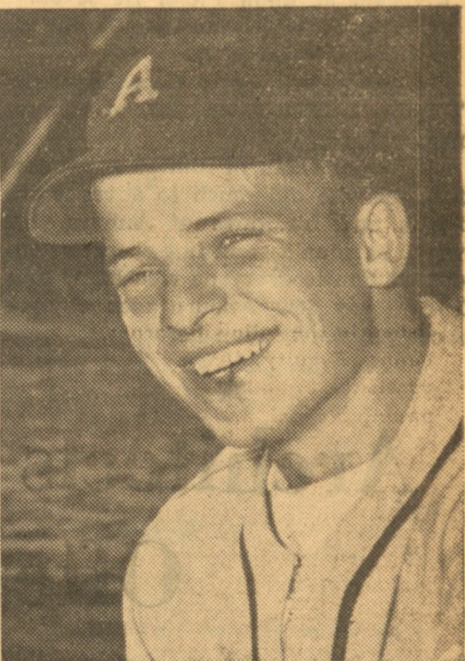

A baseball man by trade, Mr. Susce often tossed a ball with the youngsters. He gave them a million dollars worth of baseball know-how. George, Jr., the oldest, became a star sandlot pitcher. Paul, who was unable to run, also selected pitching. Mike, just younger than Paul, chose the outfield, while Little Johnny, now nine, was a batboy.

Gifted right arm

PAUL WAS GIFTED with a strong arm from the very start. He could pitch better than any kid in the area—whether the family was living in Cleveland, Sarasota, Pittsburgh or Waban, Mass.

After George, Jr., signed a professional contract with the Boston Red Sox for a bonus, Paul's life was easier. He was respected, and the boys fought for him as a teammate.

Dick McGowen gave the teen-age Paul an Auburn scholarship after watching him perform.

Best pitcher in SEC

TODAY, PAUL is the SEC's best and ranks as one of the top players in collegiate baseball. He posted seven wins against a lone defeat this season to lead the conference.

He can't run fast. He has been clocked in 6.1 seconds running to first. (Outfielder Byrd Whigham runs it in 3.7).

Other teams bunt on him more than they would on another pitcher. Very few players get to first safely, though. Paul has worked on fielding bunts, getting wonderful support from Third Baseman Jim Pyburn and Catcher Jimmy Powell.

Because Paul is an athlete with a big heart, he has earned the admiration of his Plainsman teammates and coach.

Major League Later?

SOME SAY he will be a major league prospect. His record supports that prediction. In 64 innings, he gave up 42 hits, 15 runs and 30 walks, while striking out 57 men. His earned run total of seven was the best in the conference.

Paul is more than willing to let the record speak for him.

Captains Killed In Crashes

CAPT. SAMUEL LAIRD BOROUGHS, '46, was killed in a mid-air collision of two jet aircraft at Eglin Field, Fla., April 3.

The 32-year-old officer was a native of Montgomery. He entered Auburn in 1940, interrupting his education to enter the Army Air Corps during World War II. He served as a B-17 pilot in England, making many bombing missions over Germany. Capt. Boroughs graduated in aeronautical engineering in 1946.

He was twice president of Sigma Chi fraternity, and was awarded the Balfour Award in 1946 as the outstanding Sigma Chi in the Southeastern Province. He held membership in Spades, ODK, Tau Beta Pi, Phi Kappa Phi, and was senior representative to the Executive Cabinet.

Following his graduation, he became a test engineer for Pratt and Whitney Aircraft. He returned to Auburn to teach mechanical engineering in 1946-47. A permanent commission in the Air Forces was offered him when he returned to service in 1948.

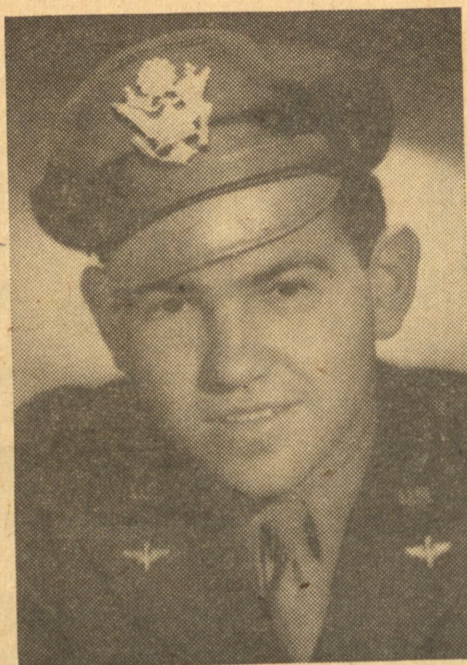

Studied missiles

AMONG his other military assignments, he took special courses in guided missiles at the University of Michigan, where he was stationed for two years. He held a master's degree and was nearing completion of requirements for a doctor's degree at the time of his death.

Capt. Boroughs was assigned to the operational test center, Air Defense Division, at Eglin Field. He is survived by his wife, Ann Butt Boroughs, and a son, Tommy, 7.

In paying tribute to Capt. Boroughs, Tommy I. Mastin, Jr., '43, of Chattanooga, Tenn., wrote:

"I like to think of him as a wonderful guy who did much to advance the ideals and traditions of Auburn. His warm personality and fine character endeared him to everyone who knew him. I dare say few Auburn men enjoyed more popularity than he."

Capt. Nunnelley

CAPT. JOE M. NUNNELLEY, Jr., '47, was killed in a C-47 crash in the Swiss Alps March 4, while on a return trip to his base in Germany from Tripoli, North Africa.

A native of Ashville, Capt. Nunnelley was reared in Birmingham and attended Howard College. After completing more than 30 missions as a bomber pilot in Europe during World War II, he entered API. He was graduated in aeronautical administration in 1947. He was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

He was employed in operations by Eastern Air Lines until he was recalled to active duty with the Alabama Air National Guard. He was sent to Hahn, Germany, in 1953.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Frances Albright Nunnelley; two sons, Joe M. Nunnelley, III, and James Russell Nunnelley; and his mother, Mrs. Joe M. Nunnelley, Sr., Birmingham.

A military funeral is planned in Birmingham when Capt. Nunnelley's body reaches the states, sometime after the first of May.

Col. Worley Wins Legion Of Merit

THE LEGION of Merit—the nation's fifth highest medal—has been awarded Col. William H. Worley, '34, for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service to the United Nations as Director of Manpower and Organization" for the Fifth Air Force in Korea from October, 1952, to May, 1953.

Col. Worley, a native of New Hope, received the medal at MATS in Washington, D. C., where he is currently assigned.

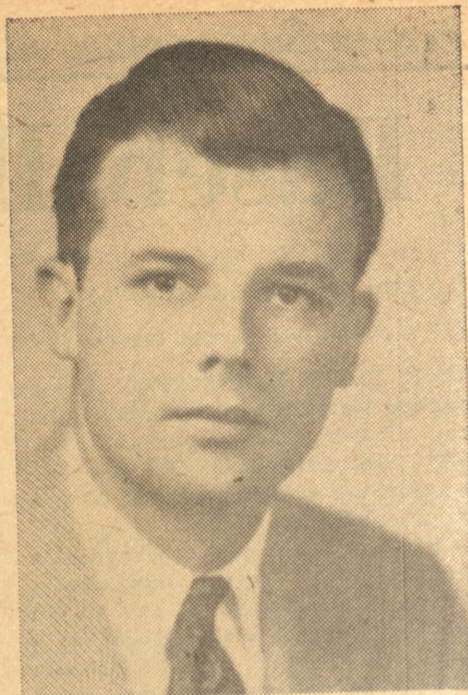

The citation reads in part, "He was responsible for the effective execution of the Fifth Air Force mission, and for attaining maximum utilization of personnel allotted to the command."

"Carrying through the Air Force Austerity Program, Col. Worley drew from his wide experience in the personnel field and applied the most stringent, judicious manning principles to reduce the number of indigenous personnel employees in Korea from 25,000 to 10,000. This tremendous reduction resulted in the saving of thousands of dollars to the Air Force without hampering its Korean Mission."

HIS REORGANIZATION of maintenance operations at Tsuiki, Japan, created a "faster and more economical system" and constituted "a major advantage" to his command.

After entering the Army Air Force in June, 1941, Col. Worley commanded Air Materiel Command training groups in the U. S. and on Guam. He served at Brookley Air Force Base, in a post-war assignment. During 18 months of civilian life, he worked with the North Carolina State Department of Agricultural Education.

Col. Worley was recalled to the Air Force in 1948. He served at Air Force headquarters in Washington before going to Korea.

JOHN G. HUDSON, '48, is the manager of Southeastern Cottons' new Charlotte, N. C., office which serves North and South Carolina and part of Virginia. Since his graduation, he has been a sales representative in the company's Atlanta office. Mrs. Hudson is Peggy Fichtner, '50.

Postell Receives Hearst Award

AN AUBURN alumnus, John C. Postell, '12, of New York City, is one of the 1953 winners of a William Randolph Hearst Commemorative Medal of Award.

He is one of five New Yorkers prominent in public and private life who were selected for "outstanding achievements toward preservation and improvement of downtown Manhattan."

Mr. Postell was presented a special gold medal award by William R. Hearst, Jr., at a luncheon of the Downtown Manhattan Association in March. Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Francis Cardinal Spellman were guests.

THE AWARD was inscribed, "Upon his retirement in 1953 as President of the Downtown Athletic Club for recognition of long years of leadership and service rendered toward preservation and improvement of Downtown Manhattan." The Downtown Athletic Club owns the world's largest clubhouse.

Mr. Postell is president of the Atlantic Creosoting Company, which specializes in the manufacture and use of wood preservatives. Its plants at Savannah, Ga., and Norfolk, Va., are the largest on the Atlantic Coast.

At Auburn, where he majored in chemistry and metallurgy, Mr. Postell played intramural football for Kappa Sigma fraternity. He has continued his interest in athletics, and is an excellent bowler and golfer.

He was featured as Auburn's Alumnus of the Month in April, 1949.

Dean Smith Honored

AUBURN'S EDWIN V. SMITH, '28, has been honored as the "top man in Alabama agriculture" by the Kiwanis Club of his home town of Ozark.

The API dean of the School of Agriculture and head of the Alabama Experiment Stations, was guest speaker at the Kiwanis meeting. The honor and a gold plaque which was presented to him were a surprise.

Dean Smith

In his speech, he pointed out that agricultural research means bread in the mouths of the consumers.

Dr. Smith has served as dean of Auburn's Agricultural School since 1950.

Architects Visit Classes, Pharmacy Offers Masters' Degree

PRACTICING architects now serve as visiting critics of student work in API's School of Architecture and the Arts.

The new program, described by Dean Frank M. Orr, was worked out by the School of Architecture and the Alabama Society of Architects to give senior students the benefit of criticism from men in the profession.

The first visiting critics came during the winter quarter to spend one day in Biggin Hall class and drafting rooms. Lawrence Whitten, '28, and three other Birmingham architects formed the first visiting team.

From Montgomery, Richard Adams, '30, John R. Farris, '33, Parker A. Narrows, '41, and Robert Rutland, '35, made a similar visit during the spring quarter. A group of Mobile architects is scheduled to visit architecture and design classes in May.

PAUL RUDOLPH, '40, internationally famous architect of Sarasota, Fla., spent three days on the campus in April as a visiting critic. His visit was also sponsored by the Alabama Society of Architects.

In addition to classroom appearances, Mr. Rudolph gave two lectures and held individual conferences with advanced architectural students. He had previously been a guest critic at Harvard, Cornell, Tulane, and the University of Pennsylvania.

After his graduation from Auburn, Mr. Rudolph earned a master's degree in architecture from Harvard University. He has concentrated on Florida architecture since establishing his own firm in Sarasota.

Mr. Rudolph's latest commission has taken him to Trans-Jordan, where he is designing the U. S. embassy. He has recently been awarded the Sao Paulo, Brazil, International Prize as the "Outstanding young architect," chosen by a jury of international architects.

Graduate program

AUBURN now offers a master of science degree in pharmacy.

Because a growing number of careers in pharmacy now demand masters' degrees, the program of graduate study in the School of Pharmacy was launched in the fall of 1953.

Four fields of major concentration are open to graduate students: pharmacy, pharmaceutical chemistry, pharmacology and pharmacognosy. Minors may be selected from these fields or in chemistry, botany, zoology and entomology.

Heading the graduate staff is Dean Blake, who has taught at Auburn since 1913 and has headed the School of Pharmacy since 1941.

OTHER members of the graduate faculty:

Dr. George Hocking, nationally known pharmacognosist and member of the national Formulary Division Committee of the American Pharmaceutical Association which writes the "Pharmacists' Bible." He holds a Ph.D. degree from the University of Florida and came to API in 1951.

George W. Hargreaves, professor of pharmaceutical chemistry, who joined Auburn's faculty in 1926. He holds a master's degree from the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Byron B. Williams, Jr., associate professor of pharmacology, who came to API three years ago. He received his doctor's degree from the University of Florida.

Joseph Rash, '41, assistant professor of pharmacy who holds a master's degree from Auburn. He has been on the staff since 1948.

Norman Franke, newest member of the faculty who came to Auburn in January as an assistant professor of pharmacy. He has done work toward a Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin, and is interested both in the fields of manufacturing pharmacy and the history of pharmacy.

Dietitian talks

MRS. JEANNINE TILL BROWN, '50, described her work as head dietitian for South Highlands Infirmary in Birmingham, when she spoke to API home economics seniors in foods and nutrition in April.

Mrs. Brown earned a master's degree in dietetics from the department of human nutrition at the University of Iowa in 1952.

James Edley Turner, '29

COULD A FOUR-WHEEL tractor be manufactured from standard automotive parts?

James Edley Turner, '29, graduate in mechanical engineering, often wondered as he worked in the engineering and sales department of Pioneer Manufacturing Company in West Allis, Wis., during the late 1930's. His job included designing portable milking machines and two-wheel garden tractors for Pioneer.

He studied the possibilities of his dream tractor. It would be lightweight, small but powerful. He believed many farmers—such as the ones he knew in his native Lamar County—would be able to buy a well-made, but relatively inexpensive machine which could be operated economically.

In thinking about the tractor, Mr. Turner decided he could reduce production costs by using standard sub-assemblies and the numerous small job home on a GI loan, saving all of their cash possible for operation of their new business.

"I think there are many opportunities for people to go into business for themselves in a small way," Mr. Turner says. "They can reap the benefits of their individual effort, if they are of the particular type of temperament that prefers to work in a small organization. The financial risk is greater, but so are the rewards—both from a financial standpoint and a personal satisfaction standpoint."

Four-wheel tractor

THE ECONOMY TRACTOR has eight horse-power. It is a four-wheel riding tractor, used for farms, truck gardens, poultry farms, golf clubs, cemeteries, estates and parks. Some industrial plants have purchased the tractors for trucking and hauling.

Mr. Turner's company makes five models—the Economy, the junior, the standard, the special and the deluxe. Factory prices range from $548 to $648.50 for the basic models, with many accessories available on order. The Economy model weighs 580 pounds; the deluxe about 100 pounds more.

In addition to the tractors, Mr. Turner had to design and manufacture the equipment for use as attachments. The list includes plows, cultivators, disc harrows, rolling coulters, hay mowers, hay rakes, lawn mowers, sprayers, a Georgia Cracker corn and cotton planter. There is even a bulldozer which doubles as a snow-plow unit.

"We selected two machine shops as our basic suppliers. After eight years, they are still associated with us," Mr. Turner says. He feels he is able to obtain a well-designed product at the lowest possible cost by making full use of the engineering and technical services of his suppliers.

To supplement the tractor parts, built by suppliers, Economy tractors use standard items such as wheels, tires, transmissions, differentials and a single-cylinder four-cycle air-cooled engine.

Production increases

AS WITH MOST small companies, financing was a problem. Mr. Turner explained that by making out financial statements, he was able to establish an open account. By discounting all bills, Engineering Products Company established a Dun and Bradstreet rating at the highest possible level.

Fortunately, the Economy tractor appeared on the market when there was a demand for all types of goods. The Turners sold the first tractors through two-dollar classified advertisements in the local newspaper.

During the first year, Engineering Products built 50 tractors. This was increased to 300 in 1947, and has jumped at least 10 per cent each successive year.

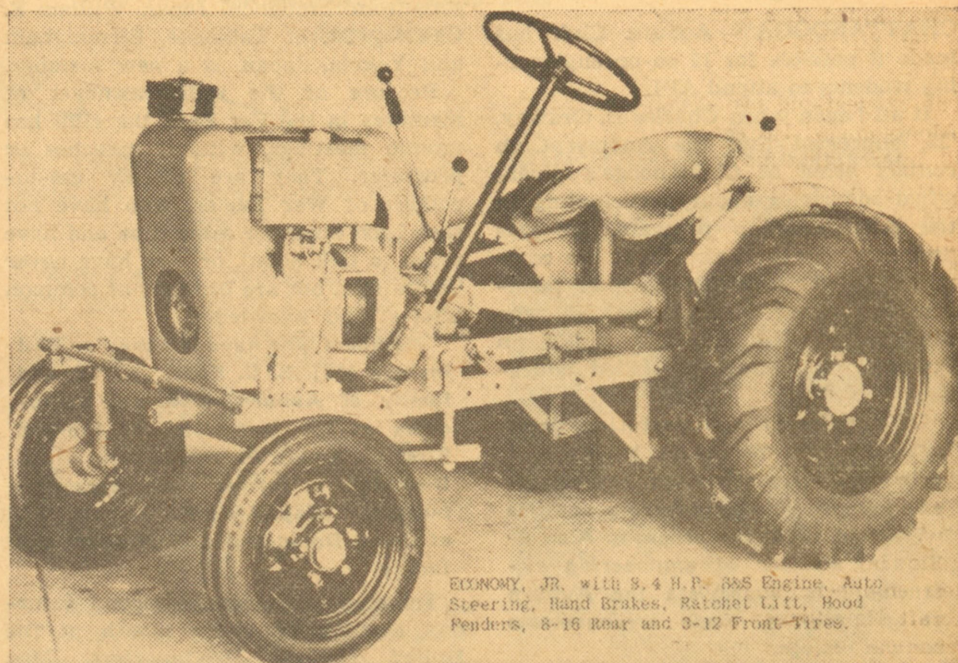

"Even this year when other things appear to be slow, we are running our scheduled 10 per cent above the previous year," Mr. Turner says. "Our product continues to enjoy good customer reception and we can keep prices low with a low overhead."

The police objected

THINGS WERE GOING well for the Auburn graduate and his young company. Then a crisis arose in 1948.

Orders were coming in so fast that the production line had expanded out the front door of the factory. "The police were objecting to our building tractors on the sidewalk," Mr. Turner recalls.

He agreed it was essential to find larger quarters. The solution was the building of a new shop in Waukesha, Wis.

ECONOMY, JR. with 3.4 H.P. GAS Engine, Auto Steering, Hand Brakes, Ratchet Lift, Hood Fenders, 8-16 Rear and 3-12 Front-Tires.

Newest tractor in Economy line

Now the Turners and their two sons, James E., Jr., 9, and Richard H., 7, make their home on Route 1, Muskego, near the plant.

School board member

MR. TURNER has taken time from his busy schedule to serve on Waukesha's school board, primary school building committee, and financial committee and official board of the Methodist Church. He has been active in Boy Scout work since 1938, and is a member of the Milwaukee Auburn Club.

While at Auburn, he was a member of Tau Omega Chi fraternity, and was an ROTC officer. He is a native of Melbourn, Ala., but has made his home in Wisconsin for many years. A job as a student engineer with Allis-Chalmers took him north a few months after his graduation from API.

Future is bright

THE FUTURE looks bright to the Turners. "As the demand for our product grows, we will increase production on a conservative basis and in line with our increase in reserves," he says. At the same time, he is keeping overhead low while building up a reserve for possible lean times ahead.

Mr. Turner's creed

FOR MR. TURNER, the rewards of operating a small business more than justify the hard work.

In addition to hard work, he feels that the small businessman should:

Use sound business principles, avoid disputes leading to litigation, give customers satisfaction, meet the requirements of suppliers and work in harmony with them.

Most important of all, he believes, is giving the customers a lot for their money. And that is just what Auburn graduate James E. Turner and his Economy Tractor are doing.

Auburn's Wilbur Hutsell

great job of building track there, thanks to your training.

The great teams of your direction were made of regular Auburn students and football scholarship boys. Your first scholarship help was to Whitey Overton; you did not issue that until he was halfway through college. Don Johnson, a quarter-miler who entered Auburn in 1950, was your first real recruit.

Worked for Auburn

DURING YOUR FIVE-YEAR period as athletic director, you worked even harder toward a better Auburn. When you felt the new movement in 1951, you retired with a recommendation for your friend and companion, Jeff Beard, '32. Each time that you have called on Jeff, he has come forth. He has worked untiringly with you in business and on the field. He and his brother, Percy have been like sons.

Oh, you have your eccentricities. In fact, anything that you do twice, and like, becomes automatic. Friends in town and at the field house can set their watches by your appearance.

Each morning at 8:30 you drive to the post office. Next stop is your office, where you enjoy the first cigar of the day. After you teach a class in track or human anatomy to physical education majors, you return to town for a quick cup of coffee and another check at the post office. Back to the field house to open the second mail and to answer your numerous letters.

You go home for the same daily lunch—a sandwich and a half, buttermilk and a small bowl of soup. A 30-minute nap—during which Annie is not allowed to watch television because you stretch out on the sofa—is a must.

You are back at your desk, smoking your third cigar, by 2 p.m.—after checking the post office again, of course. By 4:15 you are on the track. You remain there until every living soul has gone. A leisurely shower and the lighting of a half-smoked cigar follows. You are ready to go home then, after you check the post office just one more time.

Split-second win

YOUR GREATEST TRACK thrill came in the mile relay of the SEC in 1937, when W. S. Ellis, H. E. Kelly, H. D. Williams and A. W. Kilgore set a record of 3:19.7. Kilgore, the anchor man, took the baton in third place and finished a split-second first. You'll never forget that race.

As your coral wedding anniversary and your 33rd season at Auburn arrive, you are a contented man. Often you look with pride on your boys records. But no one has to recognize your past performances or praise your genius to keep you happy—you are too busy creating future track stars for Auburn.

Yes, Coach Hutsell, this is your life.

shops in the Milwaukee area which are qualified to manufacture parts to a high degree of accuracy on a competitive basis.

Use their savings

AFTER CONSULTING with his wife, Dorothy Welbourne Turner, he resigned at Pioneer to devote full time to the tractor. They began the business venture with their savings as their only capital.

During the first three months of 1940, Mr. Turner worked out the basic design of the Economy tractor in his own home. Castings and parts for 25 units were ordered, together with the essential manufacturing jigs and patterns.

There the work stopped.

Mr. Turner had accepted a position as purchasing agent for Atlantic Steel Company. He and his wife moved to Atlanta, Ga. He had served Atlantic only one year when he was called to active service as a captain in the Air Corps.

Capt. Turner advanced, but his tractor did not, during the five years he spent in the Air Corps in supply and maintenance work.

He was discharged as a lieutenant-colonel.

Partnership formed

"AT THAT TIME my wife and I had saved about $12,000," he recalls. "Without outside capital, we decided to go in to the tractor manufacturing business as a partnership."

Thus the Engineering Products Company, producers of the Economy tractor, was born in Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Turner became manager and chief partner.

Working with the bank and through the RFC, the Turners made arrangements to purchase a small building in downtown Milwaukee. They bought a

Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA'S Auburn Club has made it possible for 11 co-op engineering students to attend API.

It all began when Charles B. Ordway, '22, suggested that the Auburn Club contact some of Chattanooga's diversified industries about participating in the school's co-op program. He was promptly named chairman of the committee to work out plans. Other members were Paul O. Anderson, '40, who also represented industry; and Dean Petersen, '25, who represented education.

A number of manufacturing firms agreed to hire the co-ops. High school principals were contacted, and selected students with engineering abilities were told about the program. Alex O. Taylor, director of engineering extension who supervises the Auburn co-op program, made arrangements for the college.

The 11 students, who will graduate from Chattanooga or Rossville, Ga., high schools this spring, will enroll at API in the summer or fall. "These students have been screened. API is quite fortunate in having such a group interested in attending the college," Mr. Ordway said.

Chilton County

THE NEWEST Auburn Club is the one which has been organized in Chilton County. Floyd O. Miller, '28, is president; J. Hollis Jackson, '36, is vice president; and James D. Heflin, '48, is secretary-treasurer.

Far East

THE Far East Auburn Club installed Maj. Ed B. Plaisance, '39, as president at its dinner meeting in the United Nations Headquarters at Pershing Heights, Tokyo, Japan. Other new officers are Maj. L. Maj. Plaisance, who welcomed 32 persons from throughout Japan. William E. Collum, '29, of Tallassee, Birmingham and Yokota, Japan, is a new member.

Because of the rapid turnover of members in the Far East, the club has unique meetings, without speeches or programs. They are merely get-togethers of War Eagles, who have not seen each other for some time and have much to talk about, or who have never before met, but are brothers of common interest and knowledge.

Members who have left the Far East include Maj. B. C. Pope, Jr., '33, and family of Auburn, who will be located at the University of Florida; First Lt. Edwin P. Vaiden, Jr., '51, of Birmingham, former club secretary-treasurer; Maj. Alex R. Garrett, '27, of Camp Drew; and Col. Winslett and family.

The club will meet the second Saturday evening of every month at the United Nations Headquarters. Mrs. Jolley asks parents and friends of Auburnites who are in that vicinity to notify her, at Headquarters FEAF, Box 230, APO 925, care of Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

Vet School first to adopt

Spring Internship Plan

THERE ARE no seniors on the classrooms on Vet Hill this spring.

The 61 members of the 1954 class in the School of Veterinary Medicine may be found in hospitals, clinics and on farms from Virginia, Kentucky and Florida to California. They are serving as interns with practicing veterinarians.

The Auburn seniors are the first students in the country to intern during the spring quarter. In the past, Auburn has required its veterinary students to intern during the summer between junior and senior years. API's new spring intern program has attracted wide-spread interest from practicing veterinarians and other veterinary colleges.

Under the new plan, Auburn students begin their senior year in veterinary medicine in the summer. This enables them to complete all classroom work at the end of the winter quarter of the senior year. They spend the spring quarter as interns.

The program has two definite advantages over the summer internship plan which Auburn has used in the past, Dean Redding S. Sugg pointed out.

The student has completed all class work—including surgery—and is prepared for practice.

The practitioner is busiest in the spring months. The intern can give most help during this season; at the same time, the practitioner can offer the student a wider variety of experience than at any other time of year.

Seminar in June

A FINAL three-day seminar for all interns will bring the seniors back to the campus June 2. Half-day conferences will be held by class members with the faculties of each of the veterinary school's six departments.

The interns who receive satisfactory ratings for their spring work will be graduated in June.

About one-third of the seniors plan to stay with the veterinarians under whom they interned for at least one year, as the school recommends. The next largest group will go into practice for themselves. Others will enter service or do graduate work and teaching.

DEAN SUGG said the spring intern plan has been approved by practicing veterinarians, and a large number requested interns this year. The school furnished the seniors lists of interested doctors, but each student made his own arrangements.

Sixteen are interning in Tennessee, with 10 in Alabama. Other states have the following number of interns: Florida, 8; Louisiana, 7; North Carolina, 5; Georgia, 4; Virginia and Mississippi, 3; Kentucky and South Carolina, 2; California, 1.

Billing Gives Auburn German Drawing Set

"IT'S THE MOST COMPLETE mechanical drawing set I have ever seen," said Prof. L. M. Sahag in describing the gift which Dr. W. M. (Josh) Billing, '16, presented to the engineering drawing department of API in April.

Dr. Billing, who is now a member of the board of directors and the general manager of the synthetics department of Hercules Powder Company of Wilmington, Del., was given the drawing set in appreciation for some voluntary work he did for a German industrial firm.

The drawing tools were manufactured by Nestler's in Germany, especially for display at exhibitions, engineering conferences and fairs. The set includes dividers, compasses, beam compasses, plain, Swedish and swivel-point ruling pens, railroad trail pens, sectioning devices, and elaborate spacing mechanisms for dot and dash lines.

DR. BILLING, a chemical and metallurgical major at Auburn, studied mechanical drawing under Prof. A. L. Thomas, '04. "In those days, much of the research we did involved looking for tools to work with," he remembered.

He is well aware that much more important research is going on in Auburn today, for Dr. Billing serves as an advisory member of the Auburn Research Foundation.

He holds degrees from Columbia University and the University of Cincinnati, and has obtained a number of U.S. patents for his own work. He has been in both research and manufacturing chemistry fields.

Mrs. Billing accompanied him to Auburn.

Smith Loan Fund Is Set Up

DISCUSSING the $10,000 loan scholarship which bears the names of Charles M. Smith, II, '24, and Moreland G. Smith, I, '28, Montgomery, are (left to right) President Ralph B. Draughon;

Moreland G. Smith; Dr. J. E. Greene, scholarship committee chairman at Auburn; Charles M. Smith; and Dr. David Mullins. The scholarship was set up by Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith, Sr.

AS A TRIBUTE to their sons, Moreland Griffith Smith, I, '28, and Charles Milton Smith, II, '24, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith, Sr., of Montgomery have established a $10,000 scholarship loan fund at Auburn for students who need assistance in attending college.

Moreland G. Smith is an architect in the firm of Sherlock, Smith and Adams in Montgomery, and Charles Milton Smith is president of Troy American Laundry and Cleaners in Montgomery. Both have been outstanding in their professional careers and in Montgomery civic activities.

Arrangements for establishing the scholarship were made with Auburn officials by Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith, Sr., without the knowledge of their sons.

"We were delighted with the thoughtfulness and generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Smith in establishing the loan fund in their sons' honor," Dr. David Mullins, Auburn's executive vice president, commented. "It is a fitting tribute to two outstanding alumni who are professional and civic leaders of our state."

Architects, engineers

UNDER THE TERMS set by Mr. and Mrs. Smith, the scholarships will go first to aid students in architecture and chemical engineering. However, any undergraduate student of sound character with a satisfactory scholastic record who needs assistance in attending college is eligible. Preference will be given to students from Alabama and bordering states.

Awarding of the scholarships will be handled by the API scholarship committee, which is headed by Dr. J. E. Greene.

Repayment of loans to the fund will be made by the student "when family obligations permit."

First loan made

THE FIRST SMITH scholarship loan has already been awarded. The recipient is Thomas Gene Lynn, a junior in the School of Architecture from Paducah, Ky. He has a scholastic average of "B."

Both of the Smiths were outstanding students at Auburn. Charles, a major in chemical engineering, was president of the Chemical Society his senior year. Moreland served as president of the Architectural Association, vice president of the honor committee and was a member of Spades and Scarab. Both are Sigma Nus.

Upon graduation, Charles earned a master's degree in chemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he remained to teach for a year. He then returned to Montgomery to enter the laundry business. He has served as president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club, the YMCA, and was 1953 president of the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce. He is president of the Southern Laundry Association and heads Montgomery Industries.

Studied in France

MORELAND SMITH also attended MIT, where he earned a master's degree in architecture. He studied in France and received a diploma from l'Ecole des Beaux Arts at Fontainebleau. He opened architectural offices in Montgomery in 1933, where he has remained except for service with the Corps of Engineers in World War II as a major.

He is a life member of the American Institute of Architects, past president of the Alabama Chapter, past president of the Alabama Chapter, and active in civic affairs. In 1935 he won the Jaycees emblem for outstanding service.

Auburnites Named Master Farmers

ALABAMA'S 11 Master Farm Families of 1954 include four farmers who are Auburn alumni and five others who have sent their children to Auburn.

Selected for "outstanding merit" in following good farm and home practices, the families were honored at a dinner in Birmingham Feb. 25 by The Progressive Farmer.

Alexander Nunn, '24, editor of the farm magazine, presided at the ceremonies. He emphasized that a happy, prosperous farm family is, in the final analysis, the basis of all real agricultural progress.

This year's awards brought to 39 the number of Alabama families who have been recognized since the program was initiated by The Progressive Farmer in 1926. Each of the selected families will be featured in the magazine during 1954.

Among the honorees were the following Auburn alumni:

Timber, Dairy

G. B. HILL, '03 graduate in civil engineering, who runs the 734-acre farm his great-grandfather settled in the Jackson Trace in Talladega County after the War of 1812. Mr. Hill has a little less than half of his land in timber; the rest produces year-round pasture for a dairy herd of 60 milkers and 30 heifers, bale-per-acre cotton and seed crops.

He has served as a member of Talladega County's Commissioners' Court for 28 years. At Auburn, he was a varsity football player, captain of the 1903 class football team and member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

John A. Locker, '32 agriculture graduate, who runs a 385-acre dairy farm in Lauderdale County. After graduating from Auburn where he was a member of Theta Upsilon Omega fraternity, Mr. Locker began farming as a laborer for his father. He bought land and equipment gradually.

Today his 35 Holsteins and seven Ayrshires produce an average of 8,000 pounds of milk a year. The farm grows cotton, hogs, pasture, and 50 bushels of corn or 30 bushels of wheat to the acre.

Sons are partners

AMZI G. RANKIN, SR., '14, who formed a partnership with Amzi, Jr., '43, John Robert, '45, and Joe, '50, to run the family's 1253-acre Black Belt farm in Marengo County. Another son, William, will return to the farm when he finishes Auburn in 1957.

The Rankins have developed one of the finest herds in America. More than half of their 300 Jerseys are registered. A show herd of four Jersey cows won first prize at three national dairy shows—National Dairy Show, Waterloo, Iowa; International Dairy Show, Chicago; Jersey Jug, Delaware, Ohio—and the Montgomery show in the fall of 1953.

Jack (J. A.) Wadsworth, '26, who is one of the three Wadsworth Brothers of Autauga County. With their mother, the three men took over a rundown cotton plantation and have made it one of the most talked of farms in Alabama.

Beef and hogs are top income producers on the 3,100-acre farm. Diversified farming methods produce seed crops, cotton, wheat, timber, pecans and sweet potatoes.

Children attend API

IN ADDITION TO the Rankins, who sent four sons to Auburn, other master farmers have enrolled their children at API. The students and former students follow:

Elwyn Brady, '57, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Brady of Perry County.

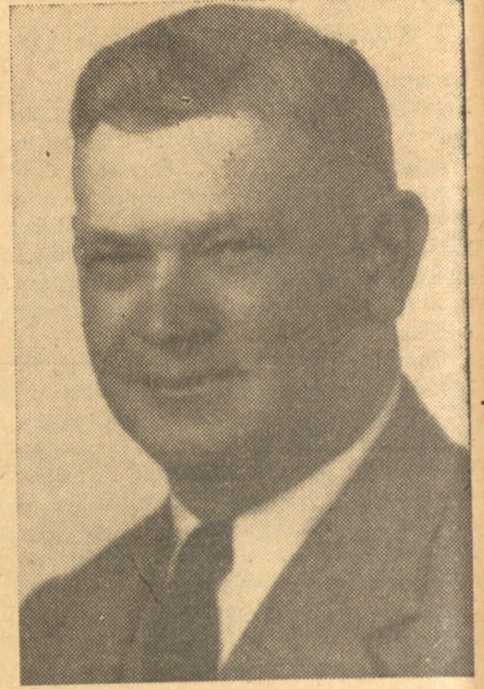

Mrs. Myrta Henry Hill, '45, and Davis Henry, '55, children of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Henry, Montgomery County dairy farmers.

Nathan Lane Braly, '57, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Braly of Limestone County.

Harriett Hutto, a senior in secretarial training who will graduate in June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul

He was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

FEW alumni drive 190 miles to attend their alma mater's club meetings.

But Auburn has one who does it regularly. He is Julius M. (Foots) Davis, '43, of Port Arthur, Texas. Chances are that he holds Auburn's record as the alumni club member who commutes the longest distance to attend monthly meetings.

Whenever the Auburn Club in Houston holds a session, Mr. Davis makes a 190-mile round trip.

Even while on his vacation in Alabama in April, he found an Auburn Club he could visit. He attended the Mobile meeting on his way home to Sylacauga from a Florida trip.

NOW Mr. Davis is employed by the Atlantic Refining Company in Port Arthur. He recently was promoted to chief accountant and purchasing agent. Mr. Davis received a degree in chemical engineering from Auburn in 1943, and joined the Texas Company in Port Arthur.

After serving in the Navy during World War II, he returned to Auburn to earn a second B.S. degree in business administration in 1948. This unusual combination brought him a job in Atlantic's accounting department.
